MISSING MILDRED MAY BE DEAD, NOW BELIEF OF POLICE

A letter which the police found when they searched the rooms of Dr. Lionel E. Dudley of Presque Isle, Me., today became the most significant feature in the search for trace of Mildred Sullivan, "the prettiest girl in Aroostook County," in connection with which Dr. Dudley and Miss Alice and Miss Etta Pelletier of Presque Isle are under arrest here.

Dr. Dudley was arraigned today in the Boston courts as a fugitive from justice, as were the two Misses Pelletier.

District Attorney Pelletier took a hand in the case today by dispatching Inspector Rooney to help the local police. This action immediately followed the practical certainty that the missing girl did come to Boston, and that if she is dead she died here.

Such a case would bring the matter under Mr. Pelletier's notice. The report that the girl came to Boston is so circumstantial that a South End street address is given as the house where she stayed.

After the arraignment of the three today, they were held in $2,500 each. Alice Pelletier is tall, dark, wore black and a black velvet hat. Her sister, Etta, is shorter but prettier. Attorney Frank Harrington appeared for the three.

MAY ARREST ANOTHER WOMAN.

The letter which was found in Dr. Dudley's room, and which has assumed such importance in the case is thus far secret. But there is a report that it contained certain names and other facts, and that as a result

PENNANT ALMOST CLINCHED

By NICK FLATLEY.

Business of clinching the pennant is now all that's left for Champion Braves. Said business will be successfully concluded within a very few days, probably at the expense of the Giants, though it's likely to happen before Wednesday, when the Sensations start their last series with the team they have ousted from the advantages and honors, financial or otherwise, that go with the lead.

When they tackle the Cubs this afternoon in the last but one home game of the season, they will do so with all the satisfaction and comfort that an eight and a half game lead brings.

From now till the end it will be simply a matter of going along easily, just hard enough to keep the players in the best possible trim for the big battle with the Athletics which starts in a little more than a week.

The young pitchers are due to

Description of Missing Girl

The description of missing Mildred Sullivan, as given by the Houlton authorities, is:

Seventeen years old, though looking at least two years older.

About 5 feet 5 inches in height.

Weighs about 130 pounds.

Dark hair, very fluffy, and a great mass of it.

A round face, somewhat full, and particularly attractive.

Full figure, with a larger bust than is usual in a girl of her age.

When last seen she wore a blue suit, shirtwaist of silk, black low shoes and stockings, and a small dark straw hat.

Special Election for Lawrence Mayor

LAWRENCE, Sept. 28.—City Solicitor Daniel J. Murphy decreed today that it will be necessary to hold a special election for a successor of the late Mayor Michael A. Scanlon, who died on August 16. This decision was given after a controversy between the members of the City Council, who thought that they ought to be allowed to name the new mayor. The special election will be held some time after December 16.

Clothing Dealer Has $1,000 Chill

It cost Abraham Cohen of the South End $1,000 to get warm today. Cohen owns a clothing store at Dover street and Harrison avenue. To get warm he gathered some waste paper and put it into a stove. When the store was getting warm the funnel fell down. Before the firemen stopped the blaze it had done $1,600 damage.

J. E. Gay, Former Copper Baron, Dead

Joseph E. Gay, former president of Mohawk and Wolverine copper companies, died today in New York at the age of eighty-two, according to dispatches received here. It is only two weeks since he relinquished the presidency of the two copper concerns in favor of John D. Stanton. His estate is estimated at $5,000,000.

MORE BUY BALES OF COTTON

William Hodge and the Regal Shoe Company are the latest to lend their support to the "Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement. Mr. Hodge's letter, and another from President E. W. Bliss of the Regal Shoe Company, came to the AMERICAN office today.

The letter from Mr. Bliss reads:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Your "Buy-a-bale-of-cotton," campaign has my hearty endorsement, as it not only aids in relieving the South from possible business stagnation, but is of real benefit to the entire country.

I herewith enclose check for $50. You may ship the cotton to our Boston office, No. 265 Summer street.

With best wishes for the continued success of this movement, I am yours very truly,

REGAL SHOE COMPANY,
E. W. Bliss, president.

The purchasers thus far include,

WILLIAM HODGE, the actor, and his check for $50, which he sent to purchase a bale of cotton.

besides the Regal Shoe Company and Mr. Hodge, C. E. Allearn, Chelsea; Nicholas C. Vaniels, South Boston; Benjamin W. Hodman, Boston; Gibbs, Morse & Collamore, Brockton; Arthur H. Stold, Randolph; Homer Alden Specialty Company, North Attleboro; Mayor James M. Curley, the Moxie Company, Governor David I. Walsh, former Governor Eugene N. Foss, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Magrane-Houston Company, and Lewis E. Jossiyn, treasurer of C. E. Osgood Company.

Mr. Hodge's letter to the AMERICAN is as follows:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Your "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" movement is a splendid one of national patriotism. It stirs all the American spirit within me. Only that I have been so busy with the opening rehearsals and performances of "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur Theatre am I so late in responding to your noble, widespread appeal on behalf of our brothers in the South.

America is to be thoroughly congratulated upon her freedom from all foreign entanglements and escape from the real horrors of the present terrible warfare of the nations abroad. But the effects of this tremendous European disaster are bound to be felt more and more by Americans in the commercial and industrial affairs of our Republic, and it is the duty, as well as the pleasure, of every patriotic citizen to do his mite towards the betterment of any distressing conditions which may arise.

Already King Cotton has felt this business stress of the old world war and a huge section of the country is in financial peril—at least, in peril of much privation and trouble. It is not too much for every well-to-do American to spare temporarily out of his funds a $50 bill, which may prove to be as much an investment as a charity—indeed, is not a charity except in the broad spirit of national fellowship and sentiment.

The prosperity of America is not in doubt, only in abeyance. Here is Boston and New England, where the Minute Men so quickly responded to the call of the nation and where "the embattled farmers stood" and "fired the shot heard round the world." There is, as there always has been, a predominant and supreme spirit of patriotism, and this "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" appeal should reach to its heart.

I take great happiness in enclosing my check for $50, with which I commission you to purchase a bale of cotton for me under the conditions of the Atlanta committee. You can hold this bale in the warehouse until conditions become bright again.

Wishing all your valuable papers the high success they deserve in this big public-spirited enterprise, I am,

Most sincerely,
WILLIAM HODGE.

ALLIES INFLICTING SEVERE LOSSES IN 16-DAYS' BATTLE

DESPERATE ATTACKS MADE BY THE GERMANS BETWEEN THE RIVER AISNE AND THE ARGONNE FOREST, IN THE GREAT BATTLE THAT HAS NOW BEEN RAGING FOR 16 DAYS, HAVE BEEN REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSS, ACCORDING TO FRENCH AND BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORTS ISSUED TODAY. BOTH REPORTS ARE VERY BRIEF, SHOWING THAT THE POLICY OF TIGHTENING THE CENSORSHIP AND RESTRICTING THE WAR NEWS IS IN FULL EFFECT AT LONDON AND PARIS. THE OFFICIAL REPORTS FOLLOW:

PARIS, Sept. 28.—There is nothing new in the general situation. Relative calm prevails on part of the front. At certain points, particularly between the Aisne and the Argonne, the enemy continually attempts new and violent attacks, which have been repulsed.

French Cost of Arms.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A dispatch today from the British Foreign Office to the embassy here reads:

"The situation is satisfactory and counter attacks on the British front have been beaten back with heavy losses to the enemy."

GERMANS CLAIM FORTS SILENCED.

Part of the French forts along the Meuse, south of Verdun, have been silenced by German artillery, according to the following official dispatch from Berlin today:

OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—The offensive movement of our troops continues without severe check. Heavy losses have been

FROST TONIGHT ON THE COLDEST SEPT. 28 EVER

Frost tonight!

This is official. The weather man says so.

The day began right for a night frost. At 6 a. m. the Boston thermometer registered 39 degrees, which is only seven above freezing. At 8 a. m. it was only 46. These are the lowest readings for September 28 on record in Boston.

Since the local weather bureau was established in 1872 they have had no September 28 temperatures as chilly. The nearest was 42 degrees on September 28, 1878.

The forecast for Boston and vicinity is:

"Fair tonight and Tuesday, frost tonight; moderate northwest winds."

Germans Lose 387 Merchant Vessels as Result of War

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Revised official figures issued by the Admiralty today show that 387 merchant ships, including fishing vessels, totalling 1,400,000 tons have been lost by Germany since the war broke out. In the same time England has lost eighty-six ships, totalling 229,000 tons. The losses of the Germans are divided as follows: Detained in British ports, 102; captured by British, eighty-eight; detained in American ports, fifteen; detained in Suez Canal zone, fourteen; captured or detained by allies, 168.

FATAL FRAMINGHAM EXPLOSION.

FRAMINGHAM, Sept 28.—Tony Vigione was fatally hurt and Fred Openti was badly cut and bruised by an explosion of gasoline today in Vigione's bicycle repair shop on Naples street. Part of Vigione's skull was blown off.

POLICE NOW BELIEVE "PRETTIEST GIRL" OF AROOSTOOK IS DEAD

of its disclosures a warrant was issued for another woman who may soon be arrested.

The investigation of the disappearance of the seventeen-year-old Sullivan girl has disclosed the apparent fact that the surgery which resulted in her death was performed on September 5 at Presque Isle, Me. The Maine officials charge Dr. Dudley with the surgery, and the two Pelletier girls with being accessories after the fact.

It is probable the three will be taken back to Maine tomorrow. It is understood that the man in the case has admitted the fact to the police.

Miss Sullivan left her home originally to attend a fair at Presque Isle. Her father met her there a few days later, but no one can be found who will admit seeing her since.

In an attempt to locate any person who saw Miss Sullivan since recently, the following description of her has been given out through New England:

Seventeen years old, though looking at least two years older.

About five feet five inches in height.

Weight about 130 pounds.

Dark hair, very fluffy, and a great mass of it.

A round face, somewhat full, and remarkably attractive.

Full figure.

When last seen she wore a blue suit, shirtwaist of silk, black low shoes and stockings, and a small dark straw hat.

There are no marks on her body to absolutely identify her.

The police today quote Dr. Dudley as saying he came to Boston to help find the Sullivan girl and as denying he treated her.

"I was asked to come to Boston, where the girl's friends said she had gone for treatment, and try to locate her," the police quote Dr. Dudley. "I could not find her. Having reached this city I decided to locate here and practice my profession."

Miss Sullivan came to Boston, I know that. But I do not know what became of her. I was asked to find her but could not."

FIND DRUGS ON WOMAN.

The three persons now held were arrested last week on other charges. The physician and the Misses Pelletier were released on $500 bail and Ettie Pelletier held at Charles Street Jail in default of bail.

Dudley was arrested in a house on Warren avenue yesterday by Detective Sergeant Will Irwin, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Martin Kane and County Attorney Bernard Archibald of Houlton, Me.

After arresting the doctor, Sergeant Irwin learned that Alice Pelletier had an appointment with the physician at a downtown hotel, where the officers found the woman and arrested her. The police say four glass bottles containing drugs were found upon her.

The two young women deny having seen Miss Sullivan. September 2 is the date named in the Maine warrants issued against Dudley, but days after that the Sullivan girl went to a house in Pleasure Isle to live, spending much of her time there in her own room. It is reported from Houlton that her father saw her there.

SEEK ANOTHER WOMAN.

Three days later, Miss Sullivan, wrapped in a blanket, was taken, the police say, in a carriage to the home of the Pelletier women, since when all trace of the girl was lost. Another woman is also being sought.

Some days later Mrs. George Sullivan, the girl's mother, received a telegram dated North Station, Boston, purporting to be from the missing girl, stating that she was in Boston and well. The original of this telegram has been sent to Houlton, and Mrs. Sullivan, after carefully examining the telegram stated positively that it was not in the girl's handwriting.

The Maine authorities have in mind two other persons who may figure as material witnesses and whose whereabouts are definitely known. One is a girl, a friend of Mildred, with whom she was seen on September 4, and who was introduced to Mildred's father, the other is a man, a friend of the Pelletier girls.

Several new clews in the case were unearthed today by the police. All of them seemed to show that the Sullivan girl, dead or alive, had been brought to Boston. At each turn, however, some baffling element met the police efforts.

The strongest clew to the mystery led to the South End. Here, according to information gained today, lies the main one and the solving of the mystery of what happened to Mildred Sullivan.

Deputy Sheriff Lawlis of Maine, gave it as his opinion that the girl is dead.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS LOST GIRL?

Mildred Sullivan, missing Maine beauty, who, it is feared, has met a fate like that of Susan Geary's.

Teach Confucianism in Chinese Schools

PEKIN, China, Sept. 28.—President Yuan Shi Kai today officiated at the first annual ceremony at the Confucian temple. The ceremony was elaborate. Yuan Shi Kai, believing China needs a religion and moral teaching, has issued a mandate directing that Confucianism be again taught in the schools.

BELIEVE OFFER OF CARRANZA MEANS PEACE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—General Carranza's statement that he will withdraw from the political life of Mexico if General Villa and the other military chiefs also retire brought renewed hope for peace today to administration officers and Constitutionalist representatives here. As the elimination of Carranza was the principal demand of Villa at the Torreon conference and caused his break with the "First chief," it is believed here that Villa will consider Carranza's pledge of retirement a complete victory for him and accept the proposal.

In that case the elevation of Fernando Iglesias Calderon to the provisional presidency was regarded as certain.

Secretary Garrison today denied that there had been any change in the previously arranged plan to withdraw the troops from Vera Cruz because of the Villa revolt.

"No change will be made to take the troops out of Vera Cruz for at least a week," Secretary Garrison added. The exact date of the evacuation probably will be decided at tomorrow's cabinet meeting. So far I did not think President Wilson has determined upon a course of action.

MORE TROOPS ON BORDER.

Five more troops of American cavalry took up positions along the Mexican line today to prevent any violation of United States territory in the battle feared between Carranzistas and Villistas at Naco, Sonora. The inhabitants of Naco, Tex., just across the line, were up at dawn and hastened to get positions on a string of cars in the railroad yards. They were driven away by Colonel Guilfoyle's troopers, because they were within range of the expected fighting.

The Carranzistas at Naco number about 1,800 men, while the approaching Villaistas have 2,000.

Representatives of General Carranza said today in El Paso, according to dispatches, that the selection of Francisco Iglesias Calderon by General Villa as the provisional president of Mexico would prove acceptable to their chief and that peace would be effected without any big battle.

EXPECT GUERILLA WARFARE.

They admitted, however, that guerilla warfare would be likely to continue for some time, as Carranza's troops in some sections of the country would refuse to accept any man whom Villa had selected.

A dispatch from Chihuahua confirms the reports that Villa's troops have occupied Zacatecas without any opposition, the Carranzistas there retiring to Aguas Calientes. San Luis Potosi and Saltillo are also reported to have been taken by Villa's men.

The fact that Calderon is a member of Carranza's cabinet is expected to hasten an agreement that would otherwise be delayed. He was a hearty supporter of the late President Madero and is known to have great executive ability.

Save Somerville Man From Shirley Gut

After being whirled about by the current in Shirley gut, off Winthrop, while he clutched an oar to keep afloat, James Wilson of Somerville was lassoed and towed ashore by two men. Wilson's tender was upset when an oar broke and sent him sprawling backwards in the water.

MRS. THEODORE E. HERON, bride in Somerville's burglar hunt romance.

POLICEMAN IN BURGLAR HUNT FINDS A BRIDE

"Jerry" Heron is back on his police beat in Somerville today after being "burglarised into matrimony," as some of his countless friends along the route express it.

If it hadn't been for a burglar, "Jerry" wouldn't have been called into William H. Smith's Mystic avenue grocery in East Somerville quite so often, and he wouldn't have met the cashier, Mrs. Marion G. Morrill, and, if he hadn't met her, he certainly never would have won her, and it looks as though the burglar ought to get "mentioned in the dispatches" at the least.

He is "Patrolman Theodore E. Heron" on the police roster, but they'll know what you mean quicker in East Somerville if you call him "Jerry." He is fifty-four years old and has been reckoned as a confirmed bachelor.

Dan Cupid was equal to the case. He sent a burglar into the store where Mrs. Morrill was cashier and "Jerry's" investigation of the burglary led to various results. What became of the burglar is inconsequential, but considerable happened to "Jerry." He discovered that the grocery cashier was a charming woman—a widow. "Jerry" also realized that a single man is as lonesome in life as a European nation which hasn't declared war.

On September 13 "Jerry" started on his two weeks' vacation. Then it was learned that he and Mrs. Morrill were married in a Connecticut town. They have just returned to live at No. 93 Avon street, Somerville.

Now all the people along "Jerry's" route who remember his telling he would never marry are waiting for him.

Fined for Playing Cards on Sunday

For playing cards on Sunday, James H. Murphy, Jr., of Brighton, James A. Kennedy of Allston, Michael White of Allston and Michael F. Cone of Brighton were each fined $10 today in the Brighton court. John Ford of Allston, M. Joseph Reed of Brighton, Joseph McGinn of Allston and Charles L. McKenney were fined $5 for being present.

Typos Now Fight Non-Union Bread

A new crusade against non-union bread was started today, according to the vote of the Boston Typographical Union. The fight began with the managements of the restaurants along Newspaper Row. Organizer Dooley of the Bakers' Union said the bread used is practically all made by a firm on the unfair list.

$57,000 TURNED IN AT HARVARD OPENING TODAY

Harvard College took in some $57,000 in an hour today after Bursar Charles F. Mason opened his office to receive term bills.

A hundred and fifty students were in line when the office opened, and eight assistants were waiting to handle the business of the Bursar. Six hundred paid their bills—$20 each—for the first term in the first hour.

It was the official opening of Harvard College for the year. Registration began at 10 o'clock. A freshman class of 700 is expected. That figure has been exceeded only once in the college history.

The new freshman dormitories accommodate 500. The others are being housed in Weld Hall in the yard. The freshman dormitories are in demand, for although they are even more luxurious than the Gold Coast, the rooms are very inexpensive.

MAKE OFFICIAL TRIP THROUGH NEW SUBWAY

The Boylston street subway will be open for public travel Saturday. The official inspection by the Public Service Commission took place today, in charge of George W. Bishop, chief of the inspection bureau, accompanied by Inspector L. M. Mclain, Professor Louis E. Moore, engineer of signals and bridges; Assistant Inspector Philip Scott and Assistant Signal Engineer W. J. Keefe.

The inspection party was carried in two surface cars entering the subway at 9 a. m. and making two trips through the subway. The inspection car was preceded by a semi-convertible car that operated the block signals. Mr. Bishop said:

"The type of construction and the workmanship were found to be satisfactory in all respects and I shall recommend to the commission the issuance of the certificate preliminary to the operation of this subway."

E. Leslie Seal, secretary of the Public Service Commission, accompanied the party which was in charge of the Elevated Railway officials among whom were M. C. Brush, second vice-president; C. H. Ellis, chief of maintenance; Superintendent H. A. Panko of the rapid transit lines; Superintendent R. H. Tripp of the surface lines, H. M. Steward, chief engineer maintenance of way, and Edward Wilson, chief engineer mechanical and electrical engineering.

The subway extends from the junction of Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue to the end of the Boylston street arm of the old subway under Boylston street opposite the Public Garden. It is a little more than a mile and a half in length and will result in the reduction in the running time between the junction of Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street to Park street subway station from fifteen minutes to eight minutes, making a saving of seven minutes in each direction.

The following lines of cars will be run through the subway: Reservoir-Park street subway via Boston street, Lake street-Park street subway via Beacon street, Lake street-Park street subway via Commonwealth avenue, Waterfront-Park street subway via Brighton and Commonwealth avenue. In order to relieve congestion on Tremont street between the subway entrance and Massachusetts avenue the following lines will be operated on the surface: Auburndale-Park street subway via Beacon street and Boylston street, Cottag Farm-Cambridge-North Station via Cottage Farm bridge, Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street and Boylston street; Cottage Farm-Dudley street during rush hours, and Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street and Massachusetts avenue.

WASHINGTON COUPLE ESCAPE FIVE-DAY LAW

The Massachusetts five-day marriage law, which so often bothers out-of-State couples who are unaware of it, was set aside today to accommodate John M. Sinclair and Miss Effie N. Cole, both of Washington, D. C., who wished to be married at Holy Cross Cathedral in Boston.

Miss Cole was a combination of beauty and blushes, as she and Mr. Sinclair appeared before City Registrar "Eddie" McGlenen and later before one of the city court justices in the search for legal permission to the license five days ahead of time.

She is a Maine girl, native of Rockport. She has civil service position in the Postoffice Department at Washington and went to that city from her girlhood home to work. In Washington lives John M. Sinclair, whose father is proprietor of the Washington Storage Company.

Young Sinclair met the winsome Maine girl and didn't look any farther. The couple came on from Washington today, headed for Miss Cole's home in Rockport.

Miss Cole wished to be married in Holy Cross Cathedral at Boston. They arranged to meet her parents in Boston and be married here today.

When the city registrar explained that they would have to wait five full long days for the license, they were disappointed. But a court plea was suggested. They went to the courthouse. The justice then happened to go to looked upon the problem with "sweet reasonableness" and issued a permit for an immediate license. Then the couple secured the license and left off the cathedral.

MRS. GLOVER OPENS STORE IN WALTHAM

MRS. LILLIAN GLOVER-DELMARRE, one of the central figures in the famous case, behind the counter of the delicatessen store she opened today in Waltham.

Mrs. Clarence F. Glover as was, Mrs. Ferdinand A. Delemarre as is, «-2sy proved herself the original "nothing to do till tomorrow" lady, when she began her work in Mr. Delemarre's delicatessen store at No. 503 Main street, W-ltham.

The beautiful central figure of the famous murder case now rises at 5 and toils till the wee, sma' hours. She bakes beans, she roasts chickens, she pickles tongues, she makes the famous Delemarre brown bread, she sweeps, she dusts, she scrubs, she washes—and she enjoys it all to the full.

"I'm the original and only 'nothing to do till tomorrow,'" she said, laughingly, today. "Try one of my banana custards." And she extended a dainty looking cup to the reporter. He took it gingerly.

"How do you make it?" he asked.

"A pint of milk," said Mrs. Delemarre glibly. "Two teaspoonful of sugar. One egg. One-half teaspoonful of corn starch. One and a half sliced bananas. Boil the custard well and pour over the bananas. Good, isn't it?"

It was. Then Mrs. Glover went on to tell of her work.

"I got things ready Saturday," she said. "Believe me, it was work. I got up at 5 o'clock, had breakfast and was down here at the store by 6. I swept and dusted and scrubbed around, and sold some things to early customers — potatoes and canned goods and things.

"Then at 9 o'clock I went home and did my housework, got dinner for Mr. Delemarre and my stepson, then in the afternoon did some washing and ironing. Also I baked my beans.

"At 4 o'clock I took a lot of beans down to the store for the Saturday afternoon trade, helped with the late rush—made change and sales—and worked like a Young Turk till 9 o'clock. Even then I wasn't through. I had to go out and buy pots and pans and things for my cooking that begins today."

WOMAN BURNED IN ATTLEBORO FIRE IS DYING

ATTLEBORO, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Archibald Forbes, eighty-seven years, was probably fatally injured, and her granddaughter, Florence McQuarrie, thirteen years, less seriously injured, in a fire at their home in Bank street today. The damage to the house was about $1,200.

The fire started in a closet in Mrs. Forbes' room on the second floor, probably from a carelessly dropped lighted match. Neighbors saw the blaze and summoned the department. When the firemen arrived, they were unable to get into the house. Ladders were raised to the second floor windows. Firemen Day, Chisholm, Riley and Flaherty dashed through the fire into Mrs. Forbes' room, found her unconscious, her clothing ablaze. They carried her down over the ladders to the street.

In the front of the house, Florence McQuarrie was able to smash the glass in the window before she dropped unconscious, overcome by smoke. Firemen Sweeney and Clark finally reached her, and carried her down the ladders. Besides suffering from fright, the girl has a badly lacerated wrist.

By this time entrance had been gained to the lower floor by breaking in the doors. The other occupants of the house, the family of Henry Pierce on the lower floor, and the other McQuarries on the second floor escaped unassisted.

Mrs. Forbes, who was attended by Drs. Clark and Rounsville, was taken to the home of J. C. Washburn in Leroy street. She is not expected to live.

Swear in Grand Jury for New Haven Probe

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The special Grand Jury, which in accordance with President Wilson's suggestion will make an inquiry into the criminal aspects of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad case, was sworn in today by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer. The investigation will be in charge of Assistant United States Attorney-General Swacker, assisted by James W. Osborne, former State deputy attorney-general, acting as special government prosecutor.

WALSH ISSUES ANNOUNCEMENT OF FOOD FAIR

Governor Walsh today issued an official announcement of the coming Pure Food Exposition to be held at Mechanics Building, October 5 to 31. The letter sent by the Governor to the papers reads in part:

"The exposition is given by the Retail Grocers' Associations and Provision Dealers' Associations of the city and State, with the active cooperation and financial participation of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

"The Westfield standard for purity and quality has been adopted by the exposition. The exposition will have six departments, pure food, domestic science, educational, city, State and the 'back to the farm department.'

"I am informed that the various women's clubs participating total a membership of over 47,000, and that the number of grocers participating is over 2,000.

"I have invited, in conjunction with the Mayor and various business organizations of Boston, the Republic of Cuba to participated in the exposition, and I am informed that they have accepted.

"Cuba is to send with their most interesting exhibit the Municipal Band of Havana of seventy men.

"In addition to the above the United States government will have a number of most interesting and educational exhibits along agricultural and pure food lines.

"No manufacturer will be permitted to exhibit whose foods cannot stand our Westfield standard test."

Ramon Blanchart to Sing in Boston

Local music lovers will, no doubt, welcome the announcement that the management of the Boston Theatre Opera Company has arranged to secure the well-known Boston Opera baritone, Ramon Blanchart, for a number of appearances during the coming season, which begins Monday, October 5. Blanchard has a repertoire which is perhaps more extensive than any other baritone in the world. Among the operas in which Mr. Blanchart will appear this season are Ricciotto, Otello, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, Ballo in Maschera, Traviata and Favorita.

Price of Flour Is Still Going Down

Flour prices continue to decline and some millers are now charging the wholesaler ninety cents a barrel less than the high record established a fortnight ago. The lower prices, however, are slow in reaching the consumers, it being a matter of several days after the mills cut prices before the reduction is made by the grocer.

Dealer Fined for Milk Violation

A charge of keeping milk below standard for sale against James F. Melahy of Farragut road, South Boston, was dismissed in the South Boston Court today. Marguerite Healey was fined $15 for having milk below standard and hearings on similar charges against Graustein & Co. and Alden Brothers' Company were continued a week.

Marshall Field, 3d, Manages His Estate

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. — Marshall Field, 3d, today took up his work as a trustee of the estate of his grandfather, the late Marshall Field, in accordance with the provisions of the latter's will. He was twenty-one today. It is the intention of Mr. Field to carry out the desires existing in the will of his grandfather, that when twenty-one he should fit himself for business.

Roosevelt Talks at Cleveland City Club

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 28.—"The reason for the existence of the Progressive party" was Theodore Roosevelt's topic in an address before the City Club today. The Colonel motored in from Mentor, where he was entertained over Sunday at the home of James R. Garfield, Moose candidate for Governor, and where he spoke early today to a crowd on the lawn of the Garfield home.

Owner and Author to See "Drugged"

A. H. Woods, the New York theatrical manager, and Owen Davis, the dramatist, arrived in Boston today to be present at the opening performance of John Mason at the Hollis Street Theatre tonight. Davis is the author of the play to be presented, entitled "Drugged," and Woods is the owner and producer.

BEACHEY FLIES EVERY DAY AT BROCKTON FAIR

The management of Brockton Fair, which opens tomorrow for its forty-first annual, received word from Washington, D. C., this noon that Lincoln Beachey, who is to be one of the sensations at the fair, looped-the-loop five times over the Capitol today in the presence of President Wilson. After performing this feat Beachey left on the noon express for Boston. He will show the advance Fall styles in aviation to Brockton Fair patrons every day of the fair, which means tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Final preparations for the many departments of the fair were made at the big grounds today.

The blooded horseflesh—for track and show ring—kept coming in. The long strings of track stables and the "palace barns," as they are called, for the proud steppers of the horse show, filled up. Both Alfred and Reginald Vanderbilt are showing entries in the horse show this year, with Thomas W. Lawson, E. H. McLean, Miss Helen Preece, Miss Vera Hapgood, John S. Ames, Spencer Borden, John Sorg, Maurice Dimond and others.

Fast steeds will race for big purses in the daily track events.

Tomorrow—the opening day of the fair—will be Children's Day, following the time-honored custom of the Brockton Fair management. Wednesday will be "New England Day." Thursday will be "Boston Day."

Friday, the final day, is set apart for "Governor's Day." Governor Walsh is scheduled to make his first public appearance there since his arm was broken on Labor Day. Fifteen foreign consuls in Boston will also be guests of the fair that day. The Governor, consuls and other guests are scheduled to go by special train, arriving at the grounds at 1:20.

Spiritualist Convention.

The Spiritualists of the United States will hold their twenty-second annual convention in the new hall, St. Botolph and Garrison streets, October 6-10. There will be lectures by Rev. Thomas Grimshaw, Rev. William J. Erwood, Rev. F. A. Wiggin and others. Horace Leaf of London will speak Saturday evening, October 9.

MISS ETHEL KENNEDY, who is to wed R. M. Bird of Brookline, whom she met on a vacation.

Summer romances do lead to love and matrimony, no matter what the funny writers say.

There is the case of Miss Ethel Kennedy and R. M. Bird, who are to be married Thursday. They met at Penacook, N. H., while on vacations last Summer. Acquaintance led to mutual interest, then warm regard, then love.

Miss Kennedy is the daughter of Mrs. Florence and the late John Kennedy of No. 26 Thurman park, Everett. Mr. Bird is a Brookline contractor.

A novel honey moon trip is being planned. The bridal couple will tour the Provinces in a combination motorcycle.

LET AMERICA BE SALOONLESS, SAYS HOBSON

More than 25,000 persons attended the seventeen rallies in Greater Boston which featured the closing of the week's campaign of the Anti-Saloon League for prohibition. There were enthusiastic rallies also in Springfield, Worcester, New Bedford, Fall River, Brockton, Fitchburg and other cities.

Leaders of the movement declared today they were pleased with the result of the campaign which promised to do much for the cause of temperance in Massachusetts. The principal rally in Boston was held in Tremont Temple. Congressman Richmond P. Hobson was the chief speaker.

Hobson outlined the proposed temperance constitutional amendment which aims to eliminate the public saloon in the United States for all time, and which, he says, would place this country in the lead of all nations in the world in the greatest reform of modern ages.

$7,500 Raised to Aid Jews in Palestine

A mass meeting of 4,000 Boston Zionists in Symphony Hall, with an overflow meeting in Jordan Hall, resulted in $7,500 being raised to help the Jews in Palestine, who are being starved on account of the European war. A fund of $100,000 is called for over the country. The chief speakers were Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, Charles R. Strecker, assistant United States treasurer; Dr. Schmarya Levin, former member of the Russian Douma, and Jacob DeHaas, editor of the Jewish Advocate.

Faulkner Boy Fined $50.

Arthur C. Faulkner of Roslindale, who accidentally shot Alexander Gass, fourteen years old, last Friday night in the foot, appeared in the Dedham Police Court today charged with carrying a loaded revolver. He was fined $50.

GERMANS SILENCE FORTS NEAR VERDUN

inflicted upon the enemy by our bayonet charges, and they have had to bring up their reserves to strengthen their lines.

German Coat of Arms

At the eastern end of the battle line our artillery has silenced part of the forts on the Verdun-Toul line, and we have succeeded in crossing the Meuse. The passage is being sharply resisted.

In the centre we continue to gain despite the enemy's heavy artillery fire which is now showing better aim.

On the west we have held all the ground we gained, though the enemy has received large reinforcements and is making counter attacks. These, however, have been repulsed.

The German forces have advanced more than twenty-five miles in the Suwalki district, though the Russians are making a determined resistance. We have captured a number of guns and many prisoners.

A later Berlin official bulletin reads:

"The situation on the different battlefields remains unchanged."

BELIEVE KAISER DIRECTS ARMY.

The belief prevails in French army circles that the Kaiser is personally directing the Germans in the battle in France, Franklin P. Merrick, in a cable dispatch to the AMERICAN, says:

PARIS, Sept. 28.—That the Kaiser is personally directing the offensive movements of the German army in France was the belief expressed today at the headquarters of General Gallieni, French military governor of Paris.

At the eastern end of the battle front where the Germans have managed to secure a foothold on the west side of the Meuse south of Verdun, the invaders are struggling most vigorously to swing their line to the northwest and thus form a complete circle of steel around Verdun and its forts. Farther to the west, toward the Argonne forest, the fighting is less heavy. But to the west of this point, between the Argonne and Rheims the hostilities have taken on a violence rivalling the fierceness of the fighting up the Oise.

Still farther to the west, along the Aisne and up the Oise there is constant fighting. The bloodiest struggle, however, is taking place in the triangle formed by the towns of Ribecourt, Bapaume and Hirson.

Strength is given to previous reports of a German campaign against Antwerp by the following cable today from Bernard Belancourt, the AMERICAN'S special war correspondent in Belgium.

ANTWERP, Sept. 28.—Despite the tremendous strain upon their troops in France, the Germans continue to press northward in Belgium with the evident intention of attacking the forts around Antwerp at the earliest opportunity. The German artillery is again bombarding the Belgian works at Malines. A Belgian detachment, which left the Antwerp garrison on Sunday, encountered a heavy force of German cavalry less than five miles from this city.

Unconfirmed reports from Ostend state that the city of Mons, headquarters of General Boelin, commander of the German army sent to assist General von Kluck, is burning and that a railroad bridge at Bierk has been blown up, cutting communication between the German forces at Brussels and Mons.

RUSSIANS 50 MILES FROM CRACOW.

The news from the eastern theatre of war continues favorable to the allies. A Petrograd dispatch sums up late Russian achievements as follows:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 28.—The Austrian troops have been routed from their third line of defence in Galicia. The Russians are approaching the Arnow, fifty miles east of Cracow, and have also captured Uzsok and Szavtana. Hungarian towns on the southern slope of the Carpathian mountains. They have captured the town of Przemysl at the point of their bayonets, but the garrisons of some of the forts there continue to hold out.

This indicates that the Russian steam roller is progressing with amazing rapidity and that only a stiff defence at Cracow and along the line from there to Thorn, East Prussia, can prevent the Russian army from being well on their way to Berlin within a very short time. The general staff is rushing the army forward with all possible haste, hoping to avoid a Winter campaign for the capture of the German capital.

In the battle of Grodek the Hungarian Guard, a cavalry division, was annihilated by the Russian Cossacks.

Servian arms are still invincible, according to the latest advices from Nish, which follow:

NISH, Servia, Sept. 28.—In an official statement issued today the Servian government claims to have won another decisive victory along the Drina river over 200,000 Austrians. The allied Servian and Montenegrin armies have reached Romanija plateau, about thirty miles east of Sarajevo. Many male inhabitants of Bosnia (Austrian territory) are joining the Servian army of invasion.

REPORT MONS IN FLAMES AND RAILROAD BRIDGE BLOWN UP

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Unconfirmed reports received here today state that the city of Mons, headquarters of General Boelin, commander of the German army sent to assist General Von Kluck, is burning and that the railroad bridge on the main line between Brussels and Mons at Bierk has been blown up, cutting railroad communication between the German forces at Brussels and Mons.

One version of the destruction of the railroad bridge says that it was accomplished by a Belgian force, but it is more likely that if it has been blown up this was done by a strong detachment of French or British troops.

The destruction of the bridge will put the German right wing in a serious predicament, as it would be unable to get supplies from Brussels.

Cardinal O'Connell Appoints 'Blessings of Peace' Day

(From the Boston Pilot.)

President Wilson's desire that October 4 should be set apart as a national day of prayer for the cessation of the war in Europe is a most praiseworthy one and has our heartiest approbation.

In these trying times when so many great nations are immersed in the horrors of war, it is a splendid and consoling thought that the chief executive of our nation seeks to turn the minds and hearts of his people from strife, and requests them to unite in petitioning the Prince of Peace to bring to an end the terrible and deplorable conflict now raging throughout Europe, bringing untold suffering and misery upon so many millions of our fellow-men.

In accordance with the President's proclamation, we therefore appoint Sunday, October 4, a day of special prayer for the restoration of peace among the nations. We request the priests of our diocese to offer their masses and ask the prayers of their parishioners on that day for that particular intention, and to make "The Blessings of Peace" the subject of their sermons.

PEACE EDITOR,

Please enroll my name on the world-wide committee to bring to a quick conclusion the terrible war now devastating Europe.

NAME .....
ADDRESS .....

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Twenty-five thousand persons—pilgrims to the shrine of the mighty man who spoke the words, "Let us have peace"—today have registered a mighty protest against the conflict raging in Europe in one of the most impressive demonstrations ever witnessed in New York.

Around the great gray tomb of Grant, the soldier-president, the vast army of men, women and children gathered to participate in a ceremony of song and prayer for peace and to pay tribute to the statesman whose utterance now comes back so strikingly.

No fewer than 5,000 motor cars, in which nearly 20,000 persons rode, filed past the mausoleum during and after the simple impressive services. For three hours, two abreast they glided by, most of them flying soft white pennants, on which was inscribed "Let us have Peace."

BRING MESSAGE OF PEACE.

From every corner of the city, from New England and from the South, the pilgrims came at the suggestion of the Hearst newspapers to post on high a message of peace.

As they came at first in pairs and then in hundreds—the cold, rallied threats of sleety skies fled until, bareheaded and solemn, the great throng received the invocation by the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, under a dome blue as turquoise and a sky as golden as hope.

From the multitude of windows dotting the cliffs and hills of the Riverside dwellers to the rolling shores of New Jersey, thousands of flags fluttered.

GIRL FREES WHITE DOVE.

A white dove was loosed by Miss Dorothy Powell Black as a finale to the meeting. Without a sign or twitter, the bird permitted itself to be drawn from its bejibboned cage and sped aloft.

Straight out from the great pillars of the tomb it fled. Like a dart it flew toward the eastern skies, until it stood alone above the jutting spires and lofty cornices of the city. Then in great broad sweeps it circled far to the north above the dome of the tomb.

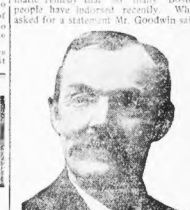
On, on it flew, and higher and higher and higher. Over the heads of the multitude it continued its circling flight, until once more, but dim against the sky it hovered in the east. Again it circled—rising, rising, always rising—over the throng.

And then, as though satisfied that its mission was understood by all the world, it flew east—due east, where blood is flowing in dark rivers and hatred has dethroned God and reason. Far down toward the east it disappeared, carrying with it the entreaty of America—"Let us have peace."

OVERCOME BY PAIN ON STREET

Tortured by Rheumatism He Tells How Var-ne-sis Conquers Disease

Attacked on the street with a severe form of rheumatism so that he had to be assisted home was the experience of Mr. C. Goodwin, who lives at 3 Grove St., Lynn, Mass., and Goodwin's friends consider his recovery remarkable and are unanimous in giving the credit to Var-ne-sis, the stomach and rheumatic remedy that so many Boston people have indorsed recently. When asked for a statement Mr. Goodwin said:



"I was in pretty bad shape from rheumatism, couldn't bend over or sit down to get up again. The minute I attempted to stoop I would have the most severe pains in my back and hips—it was so bad that I dreaded to move. "This condition run along until the pain affected my head and nerves of my body, my muscles were sore and painful and one day I was taken on the street with a severe attack so that my wife had to help me home. Don't think I suffered without trying to find relief—I had three specialists, was discouraged me and said there was no help, others treated me for a while and then gave it up as a bad job. I was about discouraged until I heard so much about this Var-ne-sis, and as all of the people were nearby I decided to try it as a last resort, as the astonishing cures it made compelled me to throw prejudice to the winds. I am glad I did, for today I am entirely free from pain and have not a sign of the old trouble. It certainly surprised me."

The Var-ne-sis exhibition of crutches, canes, photographs and letters at 140 Boylston St. is the talk of New England, and people from all sections claim the evidence almost incredible. If don't make any difference where you call your rheumatism, chronic arthritis, arthritis deformans, lumbago, sciatica and all forms said to Var-ne-sis, a registered physician gives his services free of charge to all those who call at the Boston office. Drop a postal to W. A. Varney, Dept. B, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatism.

Pabst Milwaukee Beer

Doesn't Look Like Other Labels

Doesn't Taste Like Other Beer

In Dark Bottles In Light Bottles

There is as great a contrast between Pabst and other beer in taste, as there is between the Pabst label and other labels in looks.

Both are unlike all others of their kind.

A strikingly bold design renders it remarkably easy to remember the name.

A creamy mellowness makes it utterly impossible to forget the famous Pabst flavor. Flavor founded on purity and quality which gives this delightful beverage a combination of wholesome drinking qualities that can be obtained only by the perfected Pabst Brewing Process.

Remember the name. Look for the Label. See that it says Pabst as well as Milwaukee. You'll not forget the flavor, the appetizing relish that reveals a new delight in beer drinking.

Anti-Kamnia Tablets for All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug" says Dr. C. P. Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we consider it efficient in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often applies to us for, i. e., something to relieve his pain. We can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to return to us for the other remedies which will be instrumental in cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Anti-kamnia Tablets. I have used and prescribed it largely and take pleasure in calling the attention of the profession to its merits. Anti-kamnia Tablets are also valuable for headaches from various causes, where quinine was being taken, and found to prevent the bad after-effects of that drug. Anti-kamnia Tablets are also valuable for headaches from former indulgence, also for headaches of neuralgic origin, and especially for women subject to pain at certain times. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient should be up about as usual. These tablets are 5 grs. each and can be obtained for 10c. They are also recommended for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

JOE CONNOLLY OF BRAVES GRADUATED FROM THE FARM TO STAR BERTH ON DIAMOND

MANAGERIAL CHANGES RUMORED, SAYS COBB

By TY COBB.
Written Expressly for the Boston American.

There are all sorts of rumors of managerial changes in both big leagues before next season, but I haven't been able to find confirmation for any of them. New York, in the American League, needs a leader, and up to date no intimation has been given as to who he will be. Perhaps if Roger Peckinpaugh makes a good showing with the club this season he will be given a chance in 1915, but I rather think that there will be a more experienced man at the helm when the schedule opens in the Spring.

E. COLLINS WOULD MAKE SOX A WINNER.

It has been stated and denied that John Ganzel is to handle the Naps. He has a good minor league reputation, but that in itself does not mean that he would be a success in the majors. It is much easier to win in the lower classifications than in the American and National Leagues, for if you want a certain sort of a ball player in the "brush," you almost always can buy him if the club owner is willing to spend the money.

In the big show the man who has the coin in the world would not get you a star the minute you wanted him, for all the available men deserving of big jobs are cornered and nobody will turn one loose.

There are several clubs in the American League which could be made into very strong pennant contenders in the addition of one man, yet this fellow is not to be had for love or money. Give Washington a recovering hitter of the Sam Crawford type, and Griffith would very much in the running next year, while Boston with a second baseman as good as Eddie Collins, for whom Mr. Lannin could get almost any price, would just about put the Red Sox at the head of the column in 1915.

LITTLE TIME LEFT IN CUBS' JOB.

Chairman Comiskey announced that he was not intending to bid for Frank Chance's services, as it looks as though both he and Charles Murphy of supplanting Jimmy Callahan if Cal is retained, it will be because Comiskey has found a better one for him as one of the big officers of the Chicago club.

One story has it that Johnny Evers is to get Stallings' job, and that if the Braves next season, but I would be willing to risk a small bet that the Boston leader will be on the job making any such change.

After the way Hugh Duffy George has done this year with that outfit the fans would rise up and hoot to the high heavens if he were to be given the supplant the George "Orator Jim" has done with the Braves.

It is a hard task to pick the winner of another pool with the Reds, which is tough on Charlie but very true of the opinion that the town must be considered a member of the club in order to win a pennant. It has been the fashion to check the leader out long and long before he clinched with a pennant with surprising material, and I can see no reason why Stallings did not meet with the same fate as the others.

REMARKABLE PITCHING FEAT.

There was a ball game played by a couple of semi-professional teams out in Ann Arbor, Mich., the other day which deserves a place in history as one of the most remarkable on record. Shocker, a former Canadian League twirler, pitching for an outfit called the Stockers, fanned twenty-three men in nine innings against a Gilt Edge outfit which was also a first class in the State.

Frank Hamilton, the former Boston catcher and manager, was catching, and he had twenty-three putouts, the first baseman getting the other five. There were only five assists by Otsego in the game, and of these no other made three.

As the final score was 11 to 0, it will be seen that Hamilton behind the catcher and first baseman could have played like whole Ann Arbor team and beaten it.

Even if every Ann Arbor man who reached base had been forced out by those thrown out by players other than the pitcher had put on, there still would have been plenty of margin, only one hit was made off the scheming pitcher, and that was a Texas league single in the ninth inning. As an illustration of pitching efficiency, this ranks with anything that ever has come to my notice.

Seek Soccer Coach.

ITHACA, Sept. 28.—Manager Kelsey of the Cornell soccer football team is looking for assistance to coach the Cornell players this Fall. He has been informed that Percy Johnson of Brooklyn, who coached Cornell last Fall, had gone to England to volunteer for the war, and is now probably on the firing line.

Jersey City Quits the International

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The International Baseball League's season officially closed with Providence as the pennant winner for the first time since 1905.

President Edward A. Barrow said today that although some of the clubs lost considerable money this season, the league will be on its feet again next year, with changes in the circuit.

Jersey City is to be dropped from the circuit, he said, and the franchise in another city may be transferred.

Boom Enwright for Harvard Captaincy

Tom Enwright, formerly of Worcester Academy and Exeter, is being boomed for captain of Harvard freshman football team. Enwright has been notified that he is admitted in good standing to the freshman class of the Cambridge institution, and though he failed to pass all the Harvard examinations, results of Yale tests taken last June have been favorably acted upon by the Harvard authorities.

The committees are: Finance, James Richard Carter, Arthur C. Fiske, Charles H. Lane, George S. Smith and George N. Towle.

SOX IN FINAL GAME OF YEAR IN WEST TODAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The Red Sox play at 2:30 this afternoon, the second game of the double-header with the White Sox postponed until today on account of rain. Both clubs are out of the race and it's now merely a question of when the athletes will disperse.

Of course, such an event wouldn't greatly surprise the fast guys, for they have been on the road so long that two more will be no inconvenience to them. Some contended they were ready to go home the same day they finished their season's schedule, and sought their future outward, showing that they will have to wait a few days before they can get their baggage together.

Manager Carrigan started in one lineup yesterday against the White Sox and the move resulted disastrously, as in the last of the seventh game of the season on the road he found a shortage of players. Only nine men were in uniform, and a second game was necessary to complete the schedule. Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and dicing of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

BIG ELEVENS FAVOR OPEN STYLE FOOTBALL

By TED PARKE.

"Make a virtue of necessity," said Robert Burton back in the seventeenth century, and with it you have no particular patience with forecasts and perchance backward glances on the football situation in these days of more or less justified baseball madness, bear with us for the football season is at hand and here to stay.

This same football season has opened with a thud, particularly for some of the little teams that lined up against the big elevens and were accordingly enowed under. Yale breathes more easily with Maine out of the way, and Harvard emerging from a perfectly satisfactory contest, from the Crimson point of view, with Bates, looks forward to next week's work and another easy contest against the Springfield Training School on Saturday.

Princeton had the hardest game of the Big Three and gets credit for it. She very creditably against the heavy and fast Rutgers team which had been preparing to give the Tigers a joit.

YALE FAVORS OPEN STYLE GAME.

While of course the style of play used in the first game of the season is no criterion on which to base conclusions as to what style of game the team will adopt for the season it is a pretty good weather vane and shows what the tendency is among the big colleges this year.

Yale has at last become convinced that there is something to the open game after all. To be a little more exact, the situation probably is that Frank Hinkey has convinced Yale of this fact.

And, in addition, Hinkey seems to have instilled into the Elis something of that old scrapping spirit which, in years gone by, made persons talk of Yale "grit."

There were no upsets in the Eastern last week, a very satisfactory condition, as it precludes the possibility later on in the season of some freshwater eleven claiming the championship with the aid of some slightly intricate calculations in differential calculus.

HARVARD SHOWED UP STRONG.

Harvard showed a punch that was exactly to be expected of a team which might almost be called veteran. Only one or two backfield intact from a championship team and the contempt of an open game, may forsooth, be expected to keep up a good pace through the early season, going on to success. Harvard is no Tigertown this year, while Yale has her own little problem to work out, and Hinkey can do it.

All three of the big teams may be said to have started the season impressively further advanced than they were at this time of the game last year. The players seem to have acquired a better working knowledge of the game, and the coaches also.

With Harvard this is to be expected and in the case of Yale their state of affairs should cause the supporters of the Blue to congratulate the team on the hustle directing the campaign on Yale field.

Lehigh Tackle Out of Games for Season

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 28.—Grumbach, Lehigh's big right tackle, is out for the season. It has been discovered that he suffered a broken right forearm near the wrist in Saturday's game with Franklin and Marshall. It occurred in the fourth period, but Grumbach played on till the end of the game. The nature of the injury will keep the player out of the game for the rest of the year. His loss will be most keenly felt as it leaves only four "U" men on the team, the five receiving end be given an excellent opportunity, as in other words the tackle spaces.

forward pass would be well covered.

A reversion to the open style of game, however, is something novel for Yale. In Wilson at the helm Yale developed a style that was much on the defensive and perchance backward glances on the football situation in these days of more or less justified baseball madness, bear with us for the football season is at hand and here to stay.

As a matter of fact, to digress a little, Yale is more fortunate than either of the other two teams in the Big Three, for Wilson as a general stands head and shoulders above either Logan of Harvard or Glick of Princeton.

YALE'S MATERIAL THE BEST.

A good deal of criticism was current last year of Glick's generalship, and as reports have it that his choice of plays in the game with Rutgers did not give any evidence of improvement over his judgment of last year, it would not be at all surprising to see him shifted to some other position in the backfield, as he is not good a halfback to be lost to the elevens.

With Hinkey on the throne at New Haven, steering the ship with the same Yale skill, a big eleven might be confidently looked for in the game played at New Haven, that is the style of game.

Yale has the material for a team that would give a good exposition of the game of football as the continually revised rules are trying to make it, and forward passes and end runs will probably play a big part in the Elis' advances this year.

Experience of last year and a brief glance at the personnel of the Harvard and Princeton elevens should convince Yale that a deep study of the open game will be her only chance. This applies to all of the teams, but with Brickley in the going Harvard always has a scoring machine which makes her work easier.

BIG TEAMS WELL ADVANCED.

While the Tigers open style as shown Saturday was of the simple variety, it had the earmarks of something to come. The Princeton eleven is already showing an aptitude for team work on the offense, and for diagnosis of plays on the defensive which should be very encouraging for those who believe that money talks and suggest some all other declarations of allegiance to the Tiger eleven.

With the prohibition of the rules of the "wheel shift," which Harvard used so frequently last year, and which several times caused disturbance along the line of scrimmage, it is interesting to watch the way in which Harvards attack will take this loss.

The variation of the Minnesota shift which Princeton used with such success last season will probably be employed on Tigertown this year, while Yale has her own little problem to work out, and Hinkey can do it.

All three of the big teams may be said to have started the season impressively further advanced than they were at this time of the game last year. The players seem to have acquired a better working knowledge of the game, and the coaches also.

With Harvard this is to be expected and in the case of Yale their state of affairs should cause the supporters of the Blue to congratulate the team on the hustle directing the campaign on Yale field.

TOMMY MURPHY MEETS BALDWIN IN ARENA BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

BOSTON will be the scene of a regular, big league lightweight battle, tomorrow night, when Matty Baldwin and "Harlem" Tommy Murphy clash in a twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. Both men are ring veterans and are expected to put up a hard, fast fight.

The betting on the tussle is at even money, as there is little to choose between the two men. Baldwin has the most backers, but this is to be expected, as he is a local boxer. Matty informs us that he is fit for the tussle, and that he expects to grab off the decision.

The Charlestown favorite has been traveling at a merry clip during the past few weeks, and, as not what we would term a youngster, but he seems to get better with age. He is thirty-one years old and has been boxing for close on to fifteen years. But still there are few lightweights who are able to hold their own with the battle scarred lightweight who was born under the shadow of Bunker Hill.

THE wise men have counted ten over Baldwin on many an occasion in the past. But he has always surprised them and "come back" stronger than ever. He is the same in the boxing game as Christy Mathewson is in baseball. He seems to retain his youth and vitality and when few look for him he is able to win by his excellent generalship.

BALDWIN'S bout with Murphy will prove an important hearing on his future. If Matty handles the New Yorker he will be in a position to secure matches with the leading men in the game. He has been promised a tussle with Charley White of Chicago if he defeats Murphy, while he also has his lines out for dates with Willie Ritchie and Freddy Welsh. If he can defeat Murphy he should lose to Murphy, he should find it difficult to secure matches with the stars of his boxing division.

MURPHY also realizes the importance of tomorrow night's battle. The scrappy fighting boy from Harlem is putting in the hemm rones for this contest, and he knows that he cannot afford to receive a setback at this stage of the game. Tommy met Freddie Welsh in New York the other night and proved that he is not a set-up number when he won by a wide margin.

THERE are few lightweights who know as much about the fine points of the game as Baldwin and Murphy. They are both fine ring generals and consequently the whirl will be a fine exhibition of the finer points of the glove game. As the rival boxers are both aggressive, hard handed fighters the "go" should be crowded with action.

THE semi-final bout of eight rounds will be between Larry Burns, the hard-hitting Lawrence boxer, and Tommy Rowan of New York. There will also be a six-round go between Lave Powers, the Malden welterweight, will exchange punches with Leo Roth of New York.

FREDDY WELSH, the world's lightweight champion, is being besieged with offers to box in this country. Just now the Little Englishman is performing before the footlights but when he decides to give up the stage he will not experience any trouble in securing plenty of attractive matches.

REPORT COLLINS HAS SIGNED TO JOIN FEDERALS

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—An evening paper today prints a story saying that the Federal League has made another raid on organized baseball and that, according to an inside tip from President Gilmore's office, five players who are now stars in organized baseball will be in the Federal League next year.

The tip says the story is that Walter Johnson has signed a contract to play for the Brooklyn Federals, and that Ray Collins of the Boston Red Sox, Manager Charley Dooin, Hans Lobert and Sherwood Magee of the Phillies have also jumped to the outlaws.

"An attempt to get President Gilmore to deny this story proved futile," says the paper.

"Dooin, according to the tip, will manage the Brooklyn outfit. All the five big league stars will go to Ward's team, which certainly will have the outfit a pennant winner.

"If it is true that these players have signed, either organized baseball will have to take to the Federal League or suffer heavy financial losses for another season."

As far as Ray Collins of the Red Sox is concerned President Lannin states that this player has signed a contract, with the ten days' release clause eliminated, to play with the Red Sox next season.

B. C. Varsity Squad in First Work-Out

The Boston College Varsity candidates got their first real work-out of the season today on the new athletic field at South Street. Mahoney, the former Somerville coach in confident of developing a speedy eleven to face the University of Maine at Orono next Saturday.

Mahoney's hardest work will be to develop a halfback to replace Captain Linehan. Kilroy will play the other half, is a speedy man and will be relied upon to find the scoring. The line will be strengthened by the reappearance of Dan McConnell, a big guard to the team will be Dennie Haggerty, who starred at Holy Cross two years ago. Gately of St. Anselm and Fitzgerald of ahh School are promising candidates.

Plan to Enlarge Lesley Cup Teams

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—If the plans now in progress for the consolidations in the tri-state matches for the Lesley cup at the Baltusrol Golf Club are adopted, these contests next year will be considerably more interesting to the players than heretofore.

It was suggested that in addition to the regular ten, from each district, four others be selected. At present the champion team lays idle on the first day and plays the winner of the match between the other two on the second day.

It is planned to have the champion combination play a social match with the twelve extra men on the first day, so that every one will have an opportunity for a round or two of golf.

BRAVES TO SAVE BIG BOX STARS

have their full share of work from now on, as Rudolph, James and Tyler will naturally be saved more or less for the Mackmen. They will, of course, be given several practice stints between now and the windup, but Manager George will take mighty good care not to overwork one of his stars.

STRAND OR DAVIS TODAY.

For today's Cub battle, either Paul Strand or "Pittsfield George" Davis are likely candidates. The southpaw success of Tyler and Hess Saturday may naturally incline Stallings to give Strand, who has yet to start a game, his chance to show how he can cover the whole route. What finishing up the youngster has done has stamped him as a real cure enough pitcher.

This week's program is not quite so alarming in proportion as was last week's, though the Braves weathered it fairly well, thank you. They won eight, lost one and tied one, winding up by trifling double-headers Friday and Saturday.

Seven games are on the list in the next six days. After playing the Cubs here today and tomorrow, the Chicagoans take a hurry-up jump to New York, where they remain for the rest of the week, opening with a double-header Wednesday.

The leaders now need but three more victories and the flag is the prize, though the clients will all their remaining games. Both teams have eleven still to play. Enough said.

MANY FAVOR BRAVES.

Interest now is naturally turned to consideration of the Braves' chances with the Athletics. Strange though it may seem, there are plenty of wise critics who see only victory ahead for the Boston leaders.

Any team in a big league that can establish such a record as the Braves have since they started to climb is going to be mighty hard to beat. Athletics or anybody else notwithstanding.

Since July 5, when they started that sensational streak, the champions have won sixty games, with but losing but fifteen. No wonder they look forward to rather than fear, the coming championship battle.

In the present home stand, now about over, the pace has been terrific mighty hot and shows that the team still has a lot of power not yet fully brought out. The leaders, after coming to Fenway Park Labor Day tied up with the Giants, have won nineteen games, lost four and tied two.

HITTING BALL HARD.

Steadily they have been showing greater hitting strength. When their mark, with only seven to their credit, most of their wins were low-score affairs, with the "Big Three" mainly responsible for victory by holding off the enemy. But for a couple of weeks back, most of the games have been won by hard, all-round hitting.

Matter of fact, the Braves in the past month have scored almost as many runs as they had in the entire previous part of the season.

In Smith, Connolly and Gowdy, three of the most dangerous long distance clouters hitters in the business have developed. Meanwhile, Evers, Schmidt and Moran have continually been proving the most reliable kind of batsmen—the boys who may fall down two or three times, with nobody on, but come across the fourth when there's somebody waiting to be scored. The same in a general way applies to all the others who get a chance to play more or less regularly.

OPPOSITION VERY HOT.

The hitting has been done against all sorts of pitching, too. There has been no easy opposition. In fact all the teams that have visited Boston in this last home stand have played harder and better than ever they did here before. The best pitchers have been trotted out with unfailing regularity, yet the Braves have been rattling out with the same kind of unfailing regularity, as you might say.

The Braves' big pitchers have improved, while the second-string pitchers who have been given an opportunity have shown that the rest of the staff can thereby be so hard to worry about twirlers.

So all in all, it's not all surprising that every Brave is figuring on the long end of the odds against Connie Mack's people, though of course he would be unwilling to say so before all hands. Certainly had luck favors from the Macks, is pretty confident they are going to win, as they see no reason to the contrary. Both clubs have been in the city for a day or two.

RUSH FOR TICKETS.

Applications for seats still arrive by the thousands with every mail. Boston fans from all points of the compass are evincing unusual interest in the for the grand finish. Unless all signs fail, every seat will be applied for before the Braves have been playing a second, when the first game is to be played.

The filling of orders, too, has been handled in splendid fashion and the boys' efforts at opening about 4 o'clocks have just about succeeded in getting each day's applications filed away each day. Which is why one who has had opportunity to watch the postman arrive up around the club office, is quite some accomplishment.

250,000 Feet of Gas for Racing Balloons

LENOX, Sept. 28.—Cortlandt F. Bishop has contracted for 250,000 cubic feet of gas for the all America balloon race to be held at Pittsfield on October 8. Seven balloons will enter the contest for distance, and costly prizes will be awarded the winner. Mr. Bishop expects to make the race an annual affair. It will be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America.

Braves' Star a Farm Product

Here's Connolly's Life Story

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Rural Note.

Joe Connolly of the Braves used to raise a few weeds on a farm.

What man or woman of middle age or more that does not recall the old-time variety sketch that starts off something like this:

Scene—Working in 2—Table in centre of stage upon which lay various musical instruments. Two chairs. Swell gent enters briskly.

Swell Gent—"I advertised in the paper for a boy. There ought to be some one here shortly."

(Looks at watch.) "Well, while I am waiting I will play a little tune on the cornet."

Business of music. Enter slouchy youth in black-face.

Slouchy Youth—"Ah wuzzan' you done advertise in de paper fer a boy?"

Swell Gent (talking rapidly)—"Yes, I want a boy to sweep out, wash the floors, clean the windows, carry coal up two pair flights of steps, answer the door, run errands and make himself generally useful. Ah! de hours is 7 a. m. to 7 p. m."

Swell Gent—"Correct."

Slouchy Youth—"Ah! de wages is one dollar an' twenty-five cents a week."

Swell Gent—"One dollar and twenty-five cents a week. Correct."

Slouchy Youth—"Boss," Ah guess Ah don't want de job."

Exit disgusted Youth.

Now to dovetail the portion of the sketch into the affairs of Joe Connolly, Cary (not a flight of steps, answer de do', run errands an' make himself generally useful. Ah' de hours is 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Regular Nothing-to-Do Till Tomorrow Job.

Slouchy Youth—"Ah, sustain you wants a boy to sweep out, wash de flo', clean de windows, tote a ton of coal up two flights of steps, answer de do', run errands an' make himself generally useful. Ah' de hours is 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Swell Gent—"Correct."

Slouchy Youth—"Ah! de wages is one dollar an' twenty-five cents a week."

Swell Gent—"One dollar and twenty-five cents a week. Correct."

Slouchy Youth—"Boss," Ah guess Ah don't want de job."

Exit disgusted Youth.

Now to dovetail the portion of the sketch into the affairs of Joe Connolly, Cary and Gowdy. Joe's people maintain a prosperous farm down Woonsocket way.

It was intended that Joe should become a farmer. He started in when a fifth grader. He used to get out in the morning, milked ten or twelve cows, "fed" the hogs, fed and watered the stock, fed the chickens, weeded the truck patch, gathered the eggs, loaded a wagon full of vegetables, drove them to town, drove back, unfed the cows, fed and watered them, fed the chickens, gathered the eggs, cut some wood, finishing up somewhere about 5 o'clock at night.

Jumped from Mill League to the Washington Club.

When Joe went to school he played baseball with his schoolmates. His folks does not relish their position to be blasted but probably they were able to stand the gaff. Anyhow, Joe played baseball.

Soon Joe's league outgrew all of their ilk, and Joe's brother Ed played first base in the school days.

At any rate, Joe became a lefty little boy baseball star. One time he used to smack off any pitch ball with the Mill League boys. His pranks egged him to stick to farming, but the home being free from debt, at 5 p. m. Joe guessed he didn't want "de job."

So Joe Bailly cast his lot with the Mill Leaguers and was paid small, but real, money for his services. He finally attracted the attention of baseball scouts and in time drifted to the Montreal club of the International League.

"There the big league scouts spotted him and he was sold to the Washington club, of which Clark Griffith is manager.

Joe went South with the Washington club in the Spring of 1910, but didn't make much of a hit with the manager, so when Manager Stallings of the Braves, who was sorely in need of outfielders, made an offer for him a deal was quickly made.

Connolly Made Good the Very First Day.

Stallings knew a great deal more about Connolly than Griffith did. The Boston manager was in charge of the Buffalo club of the International League in 1912, and saw a good deal of Connolly when the Buffalo and Montreal clubs came together.

Joe reported to the Braves one morning in April, 1913, at Richmond. Stallings put him right in the game against the Richmond club that afternoon and he has been a regular member of the Braves ever since. Many expert baseball men have remarked that Griffith made the mistake of his life when he allowed Stallings to grab off Connolly.

They also say Joe deserves to come to bat nowadays. He leans his team in batting and is a deliverer of clutching hits at times with the best in the National League. Joe is a little fellow, about five feet 6 inches tall, but he has a stocky build and has a great pair of shoulders on him.

Back to the Farm But Not to Labor There.

Little Joe Connolly is a great little ball player. He is easy-going and good-natured. Nothing ruffles his cheerfulness except when he isn't hitting 'em. He is the quiet wit of the team and a great favorite with his teammates.

If the old-time variety sketch mentioned above, the Slouchy Youth in blackface returns, of course, to the profound astonishment of the audience, he proves to be an expert with the musical instruments which lie on the table.

So Joe goes back to the Woonsocket farm when the ball season is over, but his hours are not from 5 a. m. to 5 p. m. He does about as he pleases on the old place.

He gets a pretty swell salary from the Boston ball club, of, course, that two thousand or so he will draw when from the world's series and him that much nearer the millionaire class.

Joe is a great little fellow. May he live long and prosper.

Goulette to Meet Tyler in Finish Go

Peter Goulette, the "Flying Frenchman, welterweight, has been matched to wrestle Joe Tyler, of Holyoke, on Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A. Gym House in a finish match, best two out of three falls.

Goulette is after the championship of New England, and a win over Tyler will move him up a peg, too, feels that he is in fine form to do the higher honors of the game. Both boys are fast and a rugged mat battle is looked for.

No Wisconsin Crew for Poughkeepsie

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—According to rowing experts Eastern critics there is a possibility that Wisconsin will not send a crew to Poughkeepsie next year. Wisconsin rowing authorities are said to be opposed to the crew competing on the Hudson because they think that the long journey, followed by the strain of training, has a bad effect on the oarsmen.

Larned and Clothier Win.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—W. A. Larned and W. J. Clothier defeated Theodore R. Pell and R. D. Little 6—4, 6—1 in the final tennis match of the Huntington Valley challenge cup of the club's courts at Noble.

Report Braves' Stars Using Emery Balls

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—Are two of the Boston Brave pitchers using the "emery ball," about which there has been so much scandal this season? Ban Johnson says he has reports that they are.

Whether Ban is right or not, the National Commission, when it meets next week to arrange for the World's Series, will take action barring the use of this ball in the big series. Just which pitchers are using the "emery ball" Johnson would not state, but it is thought that Rudolph is one of the two. At any rate, the commission will give the umpires officiating in the series instructions to watch carefully against its use.

$10,000.00 FAILURE
MOSTLY OVERCOATINGS

When Monohan The Tailor's $10,000.00 failure was announced some few months ago, the objection to the stock was that it contained mostly overcoatings. I purchased these goods. I consider every yard a staple, plaid back chinchillas, kerseys, patent beavers, Meltons, rough Scotch effects, coatings he charged as high as $50.00 for. Some were made up, some semi-ready, some customers had ordered and not called for. It is my pleasure to display these in my Boston store.

I have marked these with two prices. Those I consider under $35.00, I have marked $10.50, overcoat to order.

Those of the finer grade I have put a figure on of $12.75, made up any style, single or double breasted, with or without velvet collar.

All his ready-made and uncalled for overcoats I have placed on a counter in the rear of my store and will sell while they last at prices of $6.00, $7.00, $8.00.

I have about two hundred Black Kersey Overcoats which I guarantee all wool, made up in nice shape, designed and cut by J. Caul Macdonald, which I will sell at a price of $8.00, ready to wear out.

COAT SWEATER FREE

October 1st is my Anniversary Day, and for the next week to each customer ordering suit of clothes of my brand new Fall stock I will present free a coat sweater. Hundreds of styles of cheviots, worsteds, tweeds, both foreign and domestic goods, at price, suit to order, including handsome coat sweater free.

$15.50

Ten more pieces of Globe Unfinished Worsted from Utica, N. Y. This cloth if purchased in regular channels, would cost at least $35.00 for suit. All wool and worsted, I guarantee them for color for the life of the cloth. Suit to order.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WILFRED must have somethin' the matter with his head," said the Manicure Lady. "He got hit with a baseball bat when he was a young boy, and I have often wondered if it wasn't bothering him in the last few years. They say a man can get a bone out of place in his head and that it won't worry or bother him for years sometimes and then turn and make him kind of nutty long after the accident. I guess it must be that way with Wilfred, though goodness knows I don't see how no bone would have room to get misplaced in his head.

"The first I noticed that he was a little queer was when he began writin' poetry, about three years ago. The worse the poetry was the better he liked it, and when folks kneeled it he would say that he did not blame them, but that they did not understand. He has had a lot of fool notions in his head since then, including falling in love with the elderly widow from Chicago, but the craziest notion that he has ever took is that he wants to go out in the country somewhere and be a woodchopper.

"It seems that the poor boob was up in the woods hunting bird's nests and ran across a woodchopper that knew all about Bobbie Burns. The two of them talked about Burns all the afternoon and Wilfred came home without his portfolio, but he said that he wouldn't have traded his visit with the woodchopper for all the partridges in the world, and now he wants to go and cut cordwood the same as the gent he met. Can you beat that?"

"It ain't no map cutting cordwood," said the Head Barber. "I had to cut a lot of it when I was a kid on the farm, and you can take it from me that I didn't love the job. I would a whole lot rather cut hair."

"That's what the gentleman told Wilfred," said the Manicure Lady, "but he couldn't change the boy none. Father said that I done a fine job to cut hardwood and pile it up, and he says that there ain't many real men growing up, except the kind city these days. He laughed at Wilfred when the kid tried to make him cast off him to buy an ax with, and said that he wouldn't give him five cents to make no such fatal start as that in life.

"Wilfred had it figured out that if he could get a nice axe and some heavy clothes he could go back up there and get in partners with a fellow that knew about Burns, but the old gent pointed to him that no experienced woodchopper would take in a green kid as a partner in anything except talking about a poet. Wilfred thinks that away off in the woods he can write with more fury, he even wrote a poem about a woodchopper and read it to the old gent. This is what he wrote:

"He felts the maple and the beech
And other trees within easy reach.
Day in, day out, his keen blade swings,
In the forest he reigns just like a King.
I, too, a chopper of wood would be,
Thinking about the stars and eternity,
Chopping the maple and the beech,
And the other trees within easy reach.'

"Did his dad like that?" asked the Head Barber.

"Maybe," said the Manicure Lady, "but Wilfred didn't get no five off of him."

Up-to-Date Jokes

Church Warden Brown—Excuse me, Mr. Smith, but are you aware that you put a false half dollar in the contribution plate this morning?

Mr. W. M. R. Pringle, M. P., tells a story about a northern member of Parliament, concerning whom tales were in circulation in his constituency to the effect that now and then he took too large doses of alcohol. The member went north to look into this. To his surprise he was met at the railway station by a brass band and a cheering crowd of his supporters. His chairman of committee shook him warmly by the hand.

"Now about this story"—began the member.

An enterprising young florist, in order to increase his trade, displayed this sign in his window:—

"We give a packet of flower seeds with every plant."

His competitor across the street promptly sought to meet the competition by placing in his window the following announcement:—

"We give the earth with every plant."

She weighed close upon 250 pounds, but she insisted on entering the crowded car, and as she stood and swayed with the movement of the car she waxed sarcastic.

"If there were any gentlemen in the car," she said, "they would not allow a lady to stand."

And forthwith bubbling got up from his seat with a slide.

"Sit down, madam," he said. "I'll make one leg-ward it."

Looked Like It

Old Peppercorn didn't like waiters. He couldn't have told you why, or of what he disliked about them; all he knew was that he hated them. Some people are like that about policemen —but there's generally a reason for it.

One day old P. entered a restaurant where he was not known, and a waiter approached him before he had had time to study the menu with the seriousness it deserved.

The waiter, smiling in that annoying way waiters do, made a bad start by causing the old gentleman to jump by flicking a crumb that wasn't there off the table.

He made a bad start worse by addressing Mr. Peppercorn.

"Good morning, sir! I have, sir, devilled kidneys, pigs' feet, and calves' brains."

Old P. looked up.

"Really," said he, "And you look like it! I'll have some cold beef and boiled potatoes."

"LITTLE gray mate with the golden crest and the silver voice and the friendly ways, I've picked out the spot where the trees cast the gratefulest shade, where the winds are sweetened in the Summer and mildest when the 'White-Birds' fly, where the flowers are most odorous, where the other birds will come and sing the morning matins and the evening vespers for you and me to build our nest! There'll be a fireplace (of course), and the wind around the outer twigs to sing you to sleep, and for all I'm worth I will strive to make the nest doway for you wherever you turn! And—I'm very ashamed—but do you mind—there will be—to start with—but ONE chair—do you mind very much, golden bird of my soul?"—NELL BRINKLEY.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"NOT GOOD ENOUGH"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-five. I have recently been keeping company with a widower who is about forty years of age. He has five children. I have grown fond nearly all my life.

I loved this man very dearly and had reason to believe that my love was returned, but all my people object to him, saying that he was not good enough for me. He drinks, and it was rumored that he treated his first wife very cruelly.

"Do you think he would treat me any better?" IN LOVE.

YOUR people are quite right. Don't think of marrying a man who has either of the vices you mention. Of course, it is possible that he did not abuse his first wife, but such rumors in conjunction with the known fact that he drinks do not recommend him as a husband.

BLUSHING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I go into company and am introduced to someone I start to blush and always blush when not necessary. Can you advise me on how I could stop blushing? It is very troublesome and embarrassing. Yours sincerely, A. G.

I KNOW of no cure for blushing. But instead of worrying about it and having a feeling of dread lest you blush, think of those you are meeting and not of yourself. Everyone admires an honest, rosy blush except the person who blushes—so this really attractive "annoyance" take care of itself.

CARD PLAYING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been having my boy and girl friends at my home often lately, and one boy especially. When this young man of nineteen comes he likes to play cards, and often asks to. His mother told me that she did not approve of card playing, and as I don't want to encourage him to do what she does not like in my house, I am asking you how I should entertain him so that he will not wish to play cards or force me to confess what his mother told me.

SWEET SIXTEEN.

THERE are many games that might interest your card-playing young friend so he would forget his bad habits. Try jig-saw pictures, Parchesi, twenty questions or some outdoor games to fit the Summer season

FORMAL INVITATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Kindly advise me what to do in the following case: A girl friend of mine sent out written invitations for a party all of which had no heading as "Dear Friend," but started off with "You are," etc., except one, which started off with "My Dear Friend." Is it advisable for myself and friends to attend the party or not? INSIDER.

FORMAL invitations are always worded in the second or third person. "You are invited," etc., or "Miss Smith requests the honour," etc. Go to the party by all means and don't have a chip on your shoulder. The only invitation that was not properly put was the one that seemed most cordial!

THE YOUNGEST SISTER'S ENGAGEMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and am in love with a man of twenty-one, who in return is in love with me. He asked me to become engaged. But as I have two sisters older than myself I don't think it proper for me to become engaged before them. My friend doesn't think it right to wait until my sisters get engaged, and wants to become engaged. Do you think it would be wrong of me if I did? My parents are not against it. L. B.

THERE is no reason at all for you to delay your engagement in order that your older sisters may be engaged before you. Your romance will not either delay or hasten theirs. In fact, as a married woman you may be able to bring a great deal of pleasure and many agreeable new friends into their lives.

THE LAST SHOT--By Frederick Palmer

A Story of War and Love, Told by a World-Famed War Correspondent. The Author Is Now at the Front

FROM a great altitude, literally out of the blue of heaven, high over the Gray lines, Marta made out a Brown squadron of dirigibles and planes descending across the tract of the Grays.

The gray dirigible, stern on, were little larger than umbrellas and the planes than swallows; the Brown dirigibles, side on, were big assassins and the planes specks. To the eye, this meeting was like that of two small flocks of soaring birds apparently unable to change their course. But imagination could picture the fearful rush of forces, whose wounded would find succor of no hospital except into the earth below.

Marta put her hands over her eyes for only a second, she thought, before she withdrew them in vexation —haply she promised herself not to be cowardly!—to see one Brown dirigible and two Brown aeroplanes assailed by the Gray, single above a cloud of smoke to escape the high angry guns of the Grays.

"I've got them all!" No lips survive to tell what the eye saw," exclaimed the volunteer captain, his words bubbling with the joy of water in its sunlight. "As I thought," he continued in professional enthusiasm and discrimination.

"A GHASTLY BUSINESS."

With high-power binoculars glued to his eyes, he then turned to see if the faint brown line of Delarme's men were going to hold or break. If it held, he might have hours in which to complete his task; if it broke, he had only minutes.

Marta came up the terrace path from her chrysanthemum bed in time to see the shroud of shrapnel smoke billow over the knoll, to visualize another scene in place of the collision of the squadrons, and to note the captain's gratified expression as he pulled.

"How we must have punished them!" he exclaimed to his lieutenant. "How we must have mowed them down! Lanstron certainly knew what he was doing."

"You mean that he knew how we should mow them down?" asked Marta.

Not until she spoke did he realize that she was standing near him.

"Why, certainly! If we hadn't mowed them down his plan would have failed. Mowing them down was the only way to hold them back." he said, and seeing her horror made haste to add: "Miss Galland, now you know what a ghastly business war is. It will be worse here than there."

"Yes," she said blankly. Her colorless cheeks, her drooping underlip convinced him that now, with a little show of masculine authority, he would gain his point.

"You and your mother must go!" he said firmly.

This was the very thing to whip her thoughts back from the knoll. He was thunderstruck at the transformation; hot color in her cheeks, eyes flame, lips curving around a whirlwind of words.

"You name the very reason why I wish to stay. Why do you want to save the women? Why shouldn't they bear their share? Why don't you want them to see men mowed down? Isn't it because you are ashamed of your profession? Why, I ask?

MARTA SEEKS TO HELP

The problem of dealing with an angry woman breaking a small fire of questions over his head had not been ready solved in the captain's curriculum like other professional problems, nor was it mentioned in the official instructions about the defenses of the Galland home. So he was busy soothingly in the helplessness of man in presence of feminine fury.

"It is an old custom," he was saying, but she had turned away.

"Lanny's plan—now the enemy mow them down—now them down!" she went on, more to herself than to him.

Was there nothing for her to do? Could she only look on in a fever of restlessness while action moved around her? The staff of several automobile ambulances at the end of the foot of the garden stilled the throbs of distraction in her temples with its answer. The ambulances that were already coming in from the field she hurried down the terrace steps. The major surgeon in charge, surprised to find any women in the vicinity, was about to tell her so automatically; then, in view of her proximity, he waited for her to speak.

"You will let us do something for them?" Marta asked. "We will make them some hot soup."

He was immediately businesslike. No less than Dellarme or Graesse or Lanstron or Westering, he had been preparing throughout his professional career for this hour. The detail of caring for the men who were down had been worked out no less systematically than that of wounding them.

"Thank you, no! We don't want to add stones," he replied. "We must get them away with all speed so that the ambulances may return promptly. It's a fifteen-mile run to the hospital, where every comfort and appliance are ready and where they will be given the right things to eat."

"Then we will give them some wine!" Marta persisted.

"Not if we can prevent it! Not to start hemorrhages! The field doctors have brandy for use when advisable, and there is brandy in all the ambulances."

Clearly, volunteer service was not wanted. There was no room at the immediate front for Florence Nightingales in the modern machine of war.

"Then water?"

The major-surgeon aimed to be patient to an earnest, attractive young woman.

"We have sterilized water—we have everything," he explained. "If we hadn't at this early stage I ought to be serving an apprenticeship in a village apothecary shop. Anything that means confusion, delay, unnecessary excitement is bad and unmerciful."

CHEAPER MONEY NEEDED TO SPUR TRADE

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The week began without material change in the financial or the business situation. But it is felt that progress toward a better market of affairs is steady, and there is no doubt but that confidence is growing. Cheaper money is one thing which would stimulate general trade. It is looked for later. Order is being restored in the international money market and the leading financial centres of the world are getting their share to that end. The raising of $100,000,000 in gold on this side for the use of England to draw against should make British bankers more willing to accept American bills, and on this side when sight exchanges will be reopened is uncertain, and restrictions upon speculation have not been relaxed. There is more chance for investors to buy securities and a little wider market for holders who wish to sell. It is believed that when the gold pool has been received that sterling exchange will be easier.

SHIPPING BILL OUTLOOK POOR.

It is reported from Washington that sentiment against the Alexander bill appropriating millions of dollars for the purchase of steamships by the government for oversea commerce is so strong that the measure will probably be drowned. When the war began, and marine insurance rates soared, there was the greatest difficulty in getting ships to carry freights and the big transatlantic liners were left in port, lights masked and in fear of capture. Great Britain soon showed that her dominance of the sea could be maintained and now there are more ships than cargoes. Her steamship owners are not shipowners to change the registry of vessels and fly the American flag. Congressmen disposed to help the American merchant marine take care of itself and to opposed to government ownership. / / / ect sacrifices. If this country is to become a contestant for the world's sea trade, evidently the effort will be left to individuals. The dominant political party is so much against ship subsidies as ever.

EXPORT DEMAND FOR STEEL.

While the steel industry is very quiet, both as to foreign and domestic trade, an encouraging sign is a renewal of European demand for a variety of steel products. It is expected that in Europe the railroads will order 10,000 tons of special grades, and it is said that inquiries for sheet bars from Europe aggregate 100,000 tons. Billet orders from England amount to several thousand tons. While orders for structural steel are small, they have increased. It is said that the American manufacturers have learned within two months that for the production of specialties they can get as good steel in this country as they have been getting from Belgium. One effect of the war in the future will be home buying of many products formerly purchased abroad.

SITUATION IN EUROPE.

The moratorium in France expires on October 1 and it is cabled from Paris that its extension is practically assured. Business in the war-stricken land, as in Belgium, is prostrate. There is no little hope of reopening the Bourse soon, but some banks are trying to reorganize for a partial resumption of their business in Paris. England trade is improving. This is indicated by the increase in bank clearings. The government's decision to end the moratorium at once seems the best evidence of a great change for the better. This week bankers and stock exchange authorities are expected to agree upon some plan for reopening the latter, for the government will approve. There is considerable trading in stocks going on in London on a cash basis.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

A conference between planters, bankers and business men from all parts of the cotton belt will be held in New Orleans tomorrow. Questions to be considered are acreage reduction, a profitable crop minimum price and the withholding of part of the cotton from the market this year.

The next government report on grains will be issued October 7.

For the fiscal year ended with June, Missouri Pacific reports that its total revenue decreased $2,561,601, or 13 per cent. Seventy-seven per cent of the decrease is attributed to enforced reduction of freight and passenger rates.

GUYED TO BOSTON

By MORTON BIRGE.

V—The Back Bay.

The Back Bay is the Winter quarter of Boston's "Society leaders" and "Well known clubmen."

Through the heated term the Back Bay is considered by its residents as a splendid illustration of no place to be. They go to Manchester-by-the-Sea, Beverly Farms, and other North Shore retreats. There they make intruders from Chicago and Pittsburgh feel as welcome as golden rod at a hay-fever convention.

At this time the common Bostonian, who has to get on the job at 8 a. m., six days a week, can stroll through the Back Bay on the seventh day and gaze at the boarded and shuttered homes of the rich. One realizes that "simply everybody" is out of town—except a few hundred thousand who stick around all Summer because the store bill needs the money.

The Back Bay is like the orchestra circle in a theatre. Anyone can buy in at a price. But it doesn't follow that, after you enter, your neighbor will speak to you.

A man can buy a lot on Commonwealth avenue and keep automobiles, a valet, butler, Summer estate and private bank, but still lack a member's key to the Somerset or Algonquin Club.

There is constant sympathy between the Back Bay and State street. A depression in the "Street" is followed by melancholy through the Back Bay. A run of dull business through the bankers' and brokers' offices may result in extended suffering through Back Bay homes, such as never comes to flat-dwellers and those who pay rent by the week.

Among the chief products of the Back Bay district are debutantes, society charities, Harvard collegians, opera patrons, stand-pat Republicans and charge accounts.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

In addition to the usual large number of Eastern motorists who go regularly to California for part of the Winter there are many more who will drive across to the approaching expositions at San Francisco and San Diego, asserts Chairman Frank X. Mudd of the A. A. A. Touring Board, which reports an increasing call for information on the different routes that can now be used for trips all or greater part of the way across the continent. The most popular answer for cross-country travel is the early Fall, when the weather is likely to be more settled than in the Spring, and long distance trips can be made more comfortably than in Midsummer.

R. I. Eads, of the Premier Motor Car Company, returned today from a trip to the factory in Indianapolis. He reports he found business in the West decidedly brisk and much better than he had anticipated and that all are looking forward to a general revival of business interest, and by general is meant other lines of business besides the motor vehicle.

Savannah's second annual 300-mile grand prize motorcycle race is assured. At a recent enthusiastic meeting of about seventy-five Savannah riders, it was decided to hold the event on Thanksgiving Day over the famous Vanwit course. A list of awards has been arranged, and already a number of entrants is assured. The promoters anticipate even a larger field than last year when forty-five starters left the tape.

Francisco Villa, the Strong Man of Mexico

The situation in Mexico brings Francisco Villa again prominently to the front. The seriousness of the situation lies, not in the fact that one Mexican military leader is dissatisfied with the selection of Carranza as chief executive in Mexico, but that the leader so dissatisfied is Francisco Villa.

Villa is the ablest general in Mexico. He is the most popular leader in Mexico. He was the main strength of the Constitutionalist movement.

It was to be expected and always has been expected by any one at all acquainted with conditions in Mexico, that as soon as the United States withdrew its troops there would be insurrection in Mexico.

The revolution, therefore, was inevitable, but the success of the revolution depended upon the power and the popularity of the man who led it.

A revolution led by Zapata or any one of the other chronic revolutionists might not have been serious.

But a revolution led by Villa is serious. Villa has the personality and the following to make him plainly the strongest individual force in this Mexican situation.

He has dominating strength of character equal to that of General Diaz, but his ideals and objects are much more popular, much more in sympathy with those of the mass of the people from whom he comes and whom he represents.

The Administration at Washington might have carried out its somewhat vacillating plan of semi-intervention in Mexico with some hope of success if it had supported Villa for the chief executive of Mexico. It is probable that no selection would have been received without some dissatisfaction and revolution. It is likely that no plan of semi-intervention could have been wholly successful, but if Villa had been in control of the government the chances of the success of the revolution would be much less.

The present situation was forecasted by Mr. Hearst in an editorial in this newspaper some six weeks ago. The editorial said:

"The one man in this Mexican conflict and crisis who has appeared to tower above all others in personal power and capacity, in the magnetism to lead, the mastery to command, and the ability to execute, is Francisco Villa.

"There are many men in Mexico more cultivated than Villa, many better educated, many more trained in diplomatic service and in the gentler arts of government, but these qualities, excellent as they may be, are not what is required to rule an unruly populace at this time.

"A strong hand is needed, a determined purpose, a masterful mind, an experience gained from personal contact with the masses, a sympathetic understanding of the people's needs.

"These qualities Francisco Villa possesses as does no other man in Mexico, and he is fortified in these qualifications by the admiration and affection of the army which has followed him and the citizens who believe in him.

"If Villa is made President he will remain as President and establish a stable and reliable government."

It is possible that Carranza may make concessions to Villa which will postpone the present revolution. It is possible that the threatened continuation of American occupation of Vera Cruz may defer Villa's activity.

But Villa's power and popularity and Villa's consciousness of his power and popularity will remain, and sooner or later that dominating power and determining popularity will surely make themselves felt in the control of Mexican affairs.

The Free Public Markets

Excellent in Principle. A Fine Example. Every City Should Have Them

Mayor Curley is making a good fight that Boston may follow the example of other cities in establishing public markets—that is to say, places where farmers who produce food, and city people who consume it, may meet and trade directly.

The idea is a good one. Opposition to it is unwise and foolish, and lacks understanding.

We call this a republic. It ought not to be forbidden surely for one citizen to buy directly of another, without the help of, let us say, four middlemen.

Those who believe that legitimate business will suffer by the free markets know very little about it.

Every intelligent and able business man in every city will be delighted to see the cost of food reduced.

The prosperity of the individual depends on the prosperity of the masses.

There will always be plenty of business for the good business man, plenty of trade for the good store.

The markets would justify themselves, apart from their convenience, and the good idea that underlies them, if only BECAUSE THEY MAKE THE FARMERS AND THE CITY PEOPLE ACQUAINTED.

The farmers who come to the free market ought not only to bring their vegetables, but they ought to offer the city people and their children "good country board" in the Summer.

If a few thousand farmers could become acquainted with a few hundred thousand city people, much good would come of it.

A wise suggestion has been made that the parcels post cooperate with the markets.

The Postmaster-General, who has worked with extraordinary energy and success to increase the usefulness of the parcels post, will doubtless consider the proposed suggestions seriously.

The problem of fresh fruit, fresh vegetables, fresh eggs, could

Three Reasons Why Majority of Married Men Will Flirt

No Girl Dares Look Into Her Prospective Husband's Record—Convention Permits a Man to Do the Things He Would Divorce His Wife for Doing

By DOROTHY DIX

A MAN who knows mankind and the world well writes:

"I know, from observation and experience, that the vast majority of married men will not hesitate to flirt, or even enter into closer relation with any comely woman who gives them encouragement, and this despite the fact that they love their wives.

"I know that many good men are divorced on statutory grounds while still loving their wives. But a good woman, married to a man she loves, will remain faithful to him and never even think of another man with unlawful thoughts. A good man, on the contrary, will size up every pretty and attractive woman he sees with undisguised admiration, and will often enter into an affair with her, taking a chance of being found out, even though he knows the discovery may break up his home and ruin his life.

"What is the 'why' of this difference between the sexes?"

I think that there are three answers to this question.

The first is sentimental.

No man ever loves a woman with the complete and absorbing passion with which a woman loves a man. No woman ever takes possession of the heart and soul and imagination of a man as a man often does of a woman. No wife is ever literally all the world to her husband, as many a man is the whole universe to his wife.

The second reason why men who really love their wives are still ever ready to follow any fluttering petticoat, however great the risk, is, as William Dean Howells once aptly said, "Because, after six thousand years of civilization, men are still imperfectly monogamous."

No woman is unfaithful to her husband as long as she has one heart. When she breaks her marriage vow there is treachery in her soul against her husband, but a man may be faithless in the flesh to his wife, and yet hold her in his heart as in a shrine, and be straining every nerve and muscle to surround her with every luxury and keep her safe and sheltered from the hardships of life.

In a way, women do sense this dimly. That is why they forgive so often when their husbands stray off of the straight and narrow path, and why they shut their eyes to so many things that they do not want to see. As long as a man is kind and tender to his wife and agreeable at home, his wife recognizes that he is true to her in spirit, however his feet may wander, and she seldom feels called upon to take her troubles to the divorce court.

The third reason why men are less faithful to their wives than their wives are to them may be found in the simple fact that wives condone their husbands' immorality, while husbands do not condone their wives. Men have done their moral duty by women far better than women have done their moral duty by men.

A girl knows that before a man marries her he is going to look into her record, and that it must be spotless, or he will not have her for his wife. A wife knows that she must walk as straight as a string, else her husband will divorce her and take her children from her. Therefore women as a sex are virtuous.

On the other hand, no girl dares look into her prospective husband's record.

What is the remedy for this? Almighty wisdom alone knows. The growing number of self-supporting women is going to help some, because the woman who does not need to marry for a home can afford to be much more particular about the morals of a man she marries than could the girl to whom any sort of a husband who has a meal ticket was a godsend. Nor will the wife who has a good trade to which she can turn stand for the philandering on her husband's part that the helpless and dependent wife has had to stand for the sake of food and shelter.

The real reform, however, must come among men themselves in their growing sense of the sacredness of the marriage relationship and of an equal loyalty between the sexes, and in the struggle of the man himself to hold in leash the brute that is within him.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The Free Public Markets

be solved by the parcels post, by the power and organization of the United States Government—as in no other way.

The railroads, also, could if they would co-operate wonderfully in the work of distributing food and in the establishment of the free markets.

We offer them a suggestion. And to make it more direct, we address it to the respective heads of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, the Boston and Maine and the Boston and Albany railroads.

Your roads run right into two big terminal yards.

Why don't you build MARKET CARS—cars constructed in such a fashion that one entire side of the car could be let down and made into a platform for exhibiting goods?

Let the farmers load the car. Run it in at night to some place in your yards, which would become a market. Let the people gather—we will tell them about it in this newspaper.

Let the farmers spread out their goods on the side of the car which is lowered to make a selling counter. And when the car is empty haul it back, to be loaded up again.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad could run such cars into Boston.

The Boston and Albany Railroad could do the same. So could the Boston and Maine.

At night the terminals are used very little after midnight.

Why could not those idle early hours be used BRINGING FOOD AND FULL CARS INTO BOSTON AND TAKING OUT THE EMPTY CARS TO BE LOADED AGAIN?

Allow us to tell you, able railroad men, that while your final doom is Government Ownership—which will make you very happy and rewarded you well, when you come to know it—the best and the only intelligent fight you could make against the public demand for public ownership would be by rendering PUBLIC SERVICE OF A NEW KIND—the establishment of public markets and the lowering of the cost of food would be the greatest public service possible.
